The News' Briefs

Yearbook ready to shoot seniors

Students graduating in December, May or August can have their senior pictures taken now for The Key yearbook in 28 West Hall. Pictures can be taken from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and 1 to 6 p.m. Students will be charged a $6 sitting fee that can be handled through the Bursar's office. Students may submit their own black and white photographs with a plain background. Those submitted photographs will be charged $10. Yearbooks, which should be available next October can be ordered for $23.95 by calling 372-8026 or at The Key Office.

Free family lecture today

A free public lecture entitled "Building a Supportive Community for Children and Families" will be presented today from 10 to 11:30 a.m. in the Joe E. Brown Theater in University Hall. James Garbarino, Family Life Development Center at Cornell University, will give the lecture, which is sponsored by the Department of Family and Consumer Sciences and the College of Education and Allied Professions. Garbarino served as president of the Erikson Institute for Advanced Study in Child Development from 1985-1994. He earned his B.A. from St. Lawrence University in 1968, and his doctorate in human development and family studies from Cornell University in 1973.

Disney to visit University

A representative from The Walt Disney World company is coming to the University Sept. 26 to recruit students for The Walt Disney World College Program. An information session on the program will be held at 6:30 p.m. in 115 Olschcamp Hall. The session is open to all students and is mandatory to interview for the program. Interviews are for spring semester and will be held the morning of Sept. 27.

The college Program is a semester long of living, learning and working experience. The program is open to students who have completed one semester of college and non-graduating seniors. The program has positions available for all majors. Students participating in The Walt Disney World college Program live with other college students from around the United States as well as international students. They participate in educational seminars where students learn business and communication tactics "Disney" style. Students also gain experience as they work full time in entry-level positions through Walt Disney World.

Students can contact campus representative Melissa Wilson at 353-6182 for more information.

Eppler to host health expo

Genell Pavelich
The BG News

The Personal Excellence Wellness Conference and Exposition will take place Saturday, Oct. 5 in the University's Gertrude M. Eppler Complex.

Karen Mazzeo, conference coordinator, said the event will include various national, regional and local guest speakers on the different aspects of wellness. She said the subjects will include physical, social, emotional, spiritual, intellectual and expressive talent.

Norma Davenport, publicity coordinator, said the six dimensions could be divided into the three areas of emotional, physical, and spiritual, which are all addressed in some way at the conference.

"This conference is open to anyone who is interested in wellness and improving themselves," Mazzeo said. "This will be an exceptional opportunity to network with fitness professionals."

Participants will be able to choose one morning session and one afternoon session to attend from 13 choices of topics.

Some of the topics include establishing a personal fitness program, time management, empowering your self-esteem, Myers-Briggs personality types, dynamics of motivation and powerful goal setting, deep relaxation, tending to the spirit and communication skills.

Students interested in getting involved with the conference as a work study program can apply as

Marine lab 'unmatched'

Tanya Markul
The BG News

There are hundreds of animals swimming in the Life Sciences building for students to observe and learn about.

Paul Moore, assistant professor of biology, said the University marine biology lab is one of the best in the state.

"The lab, containing over 3,000 gallons of sea water is unmatched in Ohio universities," said Moore. "The lab is really elaborate, and many of the animals in the lab have been brought here by University students, usually from field studies."

Tara Schmoekel, junior biology major specializing in marine biology, said the lab is a learning experience and gives students an opportunity to see animals they would not see in Ohio. She said newcomers are welcome, and the lab has a very friendly atmosphere.

"The marine lab is dedicated to the students," Moore said. "It is probably the only organization where students make all the decisions, they practically run it themselves. You do not have to be a biology major to visit the lab or to even volunteer, you just have to have an interest."

The University offers students the opportunity to obtain an undergraduate degree in biology through classes offered with an emphasis in marine and fresh water science. "These extensive courses expose students to the latest techniques and research opportunities" said Paul Moore, assistant professor of biology. "There are over 100 students enrolled in marine and biology courses."

According to Moore, the lab has been in existence for 33 years and was started by Cynthia Stong.

"The lab started with five 10-gallon tanks, and since then we have grown, built a reputation for the lab and have formed links with other universities," Moore said.

"We have about 30 tanks containing fresh and salt water fish," Moore said. "In our coral

Iraq, U.S. move toward showdown

Walei Faleh
The Associated Press

MISSILE WARFARE

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq and the United States moved closer to a showdown Thursday, with more U.S. firepower sent to the Persian Gulf, Iraq claiming missile attacks on American jets and both countries spitting harsh rhetoric.

After almost two weeks of conflict, each side seemed willing to raise the stakes but neither looked prepared to make a decisive move.

Iraq said it fired missiles at U.S. warplanes over a no-fly zone for a second straight day Thursday, hours after accusing Kuwait of an "act of war" for agreeing to open its airfields to American jets.

Pentagon officials confirmed that Iraq fired three surface-to-air missiles Thursday, but said they were aimed at an area near the southern "no-fly" zone where allied aircraft were not flying.

"We had nothing in the area. Clearly he released them only to make a statement," a military official said on condition of anonymity. "There were no [radar] tracks," indicating guidance systems were not left on long enough to direct the missiles to an intended target. "It took a hard search to find them."

For days, Iraq has reported firing on U.S. and allied aircraft in the no-fly zones in the north and south. The only other confirmed attack came Wednesday, when Iraqi forces fired a missile at two F-16s in the northern no-fly zone. That missile missed its target.

The United States responded by sending four B-52 bombers and eight F-117 fighter planes to fortify the some 200 aircraft in the region. The Pentagon also said a second aircraft carrier, the USS Enterprise, will join the USS Carl Vinson already in the Gulf.

Kuwait agreed to let the United States base some of the American jets on its territory, a move Iraq's Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz called "a flagrant act of aggression against the people of Iraq and an act of war against the Iraqi state."

U.S. Defense Secretary William Perry, in Washington, called Aziz's comments "rash" and "totally unacceptable."

"U.S. military forces do not pose a threat to Iraq," he said.

But, noting that American forces moved into the area in force only after Iraq invaded Kuwait in 1990, Perry said: "If there is any challenge to those forces, we have the responsibility to protect them. The United States will take all necessary and appropriate actions."

Aziz, in a rambling commentary run by the official Iraqi News Agency, likened the recent turmoil to the period six years ago just before Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. He said Kuwait's rulers were in "evil collaboration with America in conspiring against Iraq's people."

He did not say if Iraq would take any military action to counter the Kuwaiti move.

The past two weeks have seen Saddam undertake his biggest military venture since the end of the 1991 Persian Gulf War, sending troops Aug. 31 into the north to help Kurdish allies rout a rival Iranian-backed Kurdish group.

With that victory, Saddam effectively wiped out the Kurdish safe haven that the United States and its allies established at the end of the war, giving him control of the north for the first time in five years.

In response, the Americans showered cruise missiles on Iraqi air defense sites in southern Iraq last week and expanded a southern no-fly zone set up to protect Shiite Muslims.

The expanded zone makes it even more difficult for Saddam to move his troops around the region without attracting notice from the U.S.-led air forces, which fly scores of sorties every day.

The U.S. actions against Iraq received a cool reception in the Arab world, even among partners from the Gulf War coalition. But Kuwait, which still considers Iraq a serious threat, has been fully supportive.

E.A.R. to the Ground

Hey, folks — seems as though you weren't listening last week when we said that it was inconsiderate to pack up to leave class, before it's actually time to leave class. Like we said — it's rude. It's rude to your instructor, and most of all, it's rude to your fellow students who are actually trying to listen to the last things that the instructor is saying. If you have another class to go to afterward, don't worry — you'll make it there on time! What on earth could possibly be so important that 80 percent of you can't wait just three more minutes? This is college, kids, not junior high.

Looks as though Art Modell finally got his own. In case you don't know what we're talking about, Mr. Modell seems to have had a little mishap, that left with a, um, well ... scratched scrotum. We'll leave it at that.

What's with the hordes of stinging insects taking over campus? A wary pedestrian must go to great lengths to not walk in close proximity to the bees' favorite hangouts — trash cans, for one.

Hey Falcon Freaks — need something fun (and FREE) to do Saturday afternoon? Come out and show your support for the BGSU football team! The home opener against Temple is Saturday at Doyt Perry Stadium (the big one you can see from I-75). Kickoff is at 1 p.m. Hope to see you there!

Check out the new "Back Pages" of The BG News. It's the brand spankin' new entertainment section which will be appearing every Friday. It's the most fun you can have with your clothes on -- or, at least, in your 9:30 Friday morning class.

It's Friday the thirteenth — better watch yourselves. One E.A.R. member noticed a large, wall-size mirror on the curb in front of someone's home, waiting to be taken away by the B.G. Sanitation Department. We figure that has to be about 21 years of bad luck.

Out heartfelt sympathies go out to the family of Julie Kane. We also wish Tara Fahringer a speedy recovery.

Your biggest problems -- solved

Tom Mather

"The crow finds the early bird, but only after eating it's young." - Official CIA saying
You guessed it folks, it's "start off your column with a quote" week here at the BG News. Translated literally that phrase means, "Bring a sack lunch and your permission slip, or you can't go on the field trip to the zoo."

Fluff. Fluff. Fluff. More fluff. Big fluff.

I know how every Friday, you are trying to read your paper before class, and then that freaky looking guy with the mole asks you if he can borrow your paper. He usually asks, "How's Tom's column?" And when you say you like it (assuming you do), he grabs it and you never see it again.

This week, you can tell him, "It's not very good. There's a lame joke at the beginning, and then there's just a lot of fluff." Problem solved.

This week I would like to focus on problem solving. I will discuss things such as what to do if you are a former and future Browns fan, the "lazy fat squirrel syndrome," and last but not least, how to prepare for that first test.

Browns fans, you will be relieved to hear that I have come up with a few solutions on how to get through this season. I know the horror you went through last week watching the Ravens play the Steelers. For you, this must be like watching Hitler and Mussolini playing one-on-one. I mean, who do you root for?

What you need is to take on a new team, if only for a season or two. That is why I give you the Detroit Lions. Do you need a team that's never been to the Super Bowl? The Lions are your team. How about a team that no matter how good their regular season is, no matter by how many points they are favored, even if God is predicting them to win, WILL CHOKE IN THE PLAYOFFS? The Lions are calling your name.

I know what you're thinking: "That's nice, Tom. But I need a team with a bonehead coach. I need someone who would cut the quarterback in mid-season, even if there's no replacement. I NEED TALK RADIO!"

So you are looking for a coach who comes within inches of being fired part way through every season, only to pull it out just enough to hang on to his job? The kind of coach who, when his team has the greatest running back in NFL history, likes to pass? A coach who takes out his running back on the goal line, because he doesn't think he'll score? I don't want to be the first to tell you, but you're already a Lions fan.

That was easy enough. Next problem. What's with all of these lazy fat squirrels on campus? These squirrels are bigger than some dogs. This wouldn't be a problem, except they like to lay out on the sidewalk. Do they really think they can get a better tan?

You know what I'm talking about. You're walking to class, and there's a squirrel in your path. As you near it, you think, "It'll move." When you're two feet away you wonder, "Maybe it doesn't notice me. (cough) (clear throat). What a lazy fat squirrel!" you say as you walk around it.

The next time you want to feed them, don't throw nuts. Do you know how fattening that stuff is? Throw it a head of lettuce, maybe some dressing (as long as it's light, and remember, NO croutons).

All of you freshmen are freaking out because your first test is coming up. That's why I (nice guy that I am) is going to tell all you 'bout how I pass my tests so I can grad-jee-eight before the next century.

First of all, studying shmudying. What do the last five letters of studying spell? Dying. Which is what'll happen to you if you try it. Besides, what's more satisfying? Getting your test back with an A+, which you knew you were going to get because you studied so much? OR getting a C when you were sure you had failed?

You're right, the first one. But who's going to study that much? Oh, the people that want jobs after they graduate. That's not true. I have a job at a major corporation waiting for me when I get my diploma. When I get done being manager at one of their stores, McDonald's won't know what hit them.

I'll let you in on another little secret. Bring 37 sharpened number two pencils to that first test. There's only one pencil sharpener on the entire campus. I'd tell you where it is, but then I'd have to kill you.

I know what you're saying. You're saying, "But he hasn't talked about his solution for all of the construction on campus yet." Hey, I'm a student, not a miracle worker.

Questions (What were you thinking?), comments (you suck), and beauty tips (apply the base before anything else) can be sent to mather@bgnet.

In remembrance of Julie Kane

Letter to the Editor

My name is Janet Morrison, and I am the President of the BGSU Graduate Student Senate. Although I have never before contributed to the BG News, I feel compelled to comment on the tragedy that occurred last Saturday night at 911 Mourning Dove Drive. Having attended the funeral yesterday on behalf of the student body, I was left dumb struck by the senselessness of the grievous violence that left a 22-year-old woman dead. A vast majority of university students occasionally engage in irresponsible behavior that might lead to negative — even terminal — consequences; we cross the street on a red light, drive beyond the speed limit or drink to excess. In this instance, however, Julie Kane and her roommate Tara were truly victimized. Having never been to a funeral that followed from such a violent and inane tragedy, I left the church feeling physically ill, disillusioned and empty.

A bright, beautiful, active member of our student body was murdered last weekend. Sitting peacefully in her own home, engaged in homework, Julie Kane was brutally attacked and starved of oxygen by a male perpetrator she had never met. I am stunned and sickened by the reality of her last moments of life. Did you read or listened to the 911 call? She was outright, and understandably, petrified. What a memory for her family, friends and colleagues to live with. Julie Kane will never graduate, get married, have children, do graduate work, get a job or retire peacefully to the comfort of her hometown. I am so sorry about that reality. To all of you who knew and loved her, I extend a heartfelt expression of sympathy. I have no idea how you cope with a loss of this magnitude. I do, however, hope that you will find some solace in the shared grief expressed from within Julie's learning community.

Here's the thing ... I didn't even know Julie Kane. Nonetheless, I feel her loss personally. I sat through the funeral with other institutional representatives and found myself assuming that I would have liked her. By all accounts, she was a generous and giving young woman committed to special education. I could further infer from the eulogy that she had a good sense of humor. I like that in people. More importantly, however, she was a BGSU student, just like me. She went to classes, did assignments and prioritized friendships. I wondered if I'd ever seen her in the Union, at the Rec. Center, in the Education Building or at the library. I must have. She shared a lot in common with the other 17,000+ students who go to school here. This nightmare could have happened to any one of us. As a result, it is personal. Julie Kane was a member of my community, and the violation she and her family experienced demands communal response.

The reader might appreciate an analogy tied to Hillary Rodham Clinton's book "It Takes a Village," wherein she argued that it takes an entire village and all of its collective resources to raise a child. In my construct of higher education, it takes an entire academic community, complete with all of its resources — students, faculty, staff, support services — to facilitate the development of a truly educated person. It would, as a result, follow that we share collective responsibility for each other and the quality of our university experience. In the aftermath of this senseless tragedy, we need to do something to recognize this affront to our community and its value system.

Toward that end, student governing and the Office of Student Affairs are working to coordinate a memorial service at Prout Chapel in remembrance and celebration of Julie's life.

In my view, however, the event needs to serve another purpose. We must, as a community, commit to a zero-tolerance for violence on our campus and in our city. This may facilitate a positive outlet for our grief. It would also be a tremendous — and well deserved — legacy to Julie Kane.

Sitting through that funeral was a horrendous experience. There were hundreds of mourners present, a majority of whom were physically overwhelmed by grief. Speaking on behalf of the BGSU learning community: Our thoughts and prayers are extended to the Kane's, Tara Fahringer and her family. The road toward recovery will be undoubtedly slow and painful. I hope it helps to know how many people were impacted by Julie's life and death.

In the Sept. 11 issue of The News, Jacqueline Nathan was misquoted. She should have been quoted as saying: "They were industrialists, teachers, scientists and homemakers - it wasn't just one group of terrible people - people at all levels of society participated."

The News regrets the error.

BGSU student wins award for accuracy study

Rochelle Converse
TheBG News

A University doctoral student who tested the accuracy of an alcohol and drug screening test received a national award for her research.

Linda Myerholtz, doctoral student of psychology, won the 1996 Student Paper Award in Division 50 (Addictions) of the American Psychological Association.

Her study involved testing the accuracy of a recently developed screening test for alcohol and drug dependency. The screening test, Substance Abuse Subtle Screening Inventory (SASSI), is used at chemical dependency programs, counseling centers, health centers and is widely used for DUI offenders.

"It is an initial screening instrument to determine whether or not there's a potential alcohol problem that warrants further assessment," she said.

According to Myerholtz, no research had been completed on the screening test to determine if it was "fake-proof."

"One of the criticisms is that people who do have alcohol problems may be likely to deny or they try and minimize their alcohol problems," she said.

One aspect of her research found that subjects were able to fake a substance abuse problem. However, it was difficult for them to appear as though they did not have a substance abuse problem.

Professor Harold Rosenberg, Myerholtz's adviser, said this aspect of the research was designed to test the quality of the SASSI instrument. The instrument was also tested for its consistency over time and if the outcome is similar to other alcohol screening instruments.

Rosenberg said the research results indicate that the SASSI could not completely determine if a person has a substance abuse problem.

"If one uses this instrument, one has to be very careful not to make a judgement just based on this one test. One ought to use multiple sources of information, multiple tests and interview before making a conclusion that somebody has a substance abuse problem," he said.

Myerholtz's research was completed as part of her preliminary examination for her doctorate in psychology. The results of her study were presented at the APA convention in August.

Kreischer's changes due to students

Residents working through hall government key to improvements

Darla Warnock
The BG News

Recent improvements made on the Kreischer Quadrangle were done with the help of residents working through their hall government on quad improvements.

Karen Desanto, a senior political science major, said that through her involvement with hall council two years ago, she was able to begin meeting with students to talk about changes needed throughout the quad.

The group began to meet regularly, forming a quad improvement group, consisting of about 10 to 15 students discussing what improvements needed to be made.

"Our activities began to escalate," Desanto said. "We were an integral part in trying to change things."

Students involved on the committee met with the housing office and architects about the changes they wanted to make and gave suggestions on the proposed improvements. Together with the housing office, students were able to plan some of the changes they wanted to make.

Carrie Sargent, Kreischer complex coordinator, explained the improvements made as a result of student involvement have gone over well with the residents of the facility.

"It's been nice to see students excited," Sargent said. "It's building community."

The renovations began last fall and are to be completed within the next couple of weeks. Main improvements have included fresh paint, new carpet, more community space, front desk changes, heat control, security and additional rooms approved by the American Disabilities Association.

"It's now more accessible to all students," Sargent said. "It's a very welcoming environment. I can't say there's anything I dislike."

Desanto said that as a student returning to Kreischer after living there previously, she is excited to know that she had a part in the changes.

"It's kind of a neat feeling for me living here this year," Desanto said.

santo said. "I know how much went into it, and it's a good feeling. It's made life a little more comfortable, so I enjoy it." Ashley Hall Director Tacci Smith agreed the changes have already made an improvement in the quad.

"They like it and will take care of it because it's a new facility," Smith said. "I can't foresee a lot of damage."

The only frustrations involved in the renovations, according to Desanto, is getting the job completed.

"We're just waiting for everything to get finished," Desanto said. "I think everyone has been really responsive, though."

soon as possible, because they are already making decisions, Mazzeo said.

The keynote speaker for the event is Mary Ellen Saare, motivational speaker and author of "Feet First," who will discuss how she overcame diabetes, blindness and amputations to live a quality life.

Linda Contreras, member of the conference planning team, said Saare has a "fascinating life experience."

Mazzeo said that Saare presents a message of hope in her presentation.

"People will be inspired by the hope that Saare provides," she said.

Besides the sessions with speakers, participants will also have the opportunity to walk around the conference expo area and visit booths of the different sponsors, who will be explaining the different goods and services they have available having to do with health and wellness.

There will be give-aways from the different sponsors, and the grand prize will be a one-week stay at the Kerr House in Grand Rapids, Ohio.

"The Kerr House is a health resort that specializes in relaxation, yoga, massage and much more," Mazzeo said. "It is a getaway for men and women that has a worldwide clientele."

Davenport said that both men and women are invited to attend the conference.

Contreras agreed and said some people assume that only women are interested in wellness.

"Men are not always perceived to be interested in wellness," she said.

Mazzeo said the conference will focus on wellness in all the areas.

"This will present a picture of what is possible in order to be the best you can be in all the different content areas," she said.

Those interested in attending the conference can contact Mazzeo at 353-0042 to receive an application. The deadline for early registration is Sept. 15 and the cost is $85. For those registering after that date the registration fee will be $95.

Leaders want officers suspended

Ashley H. Grant
The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS -- A drunken group of men grabbed their crotches, made lewd remarks to women and beat up two people on the street. And since the group consisted of off-duty cops, they arrested the pair, too.

Some 50 witnesses could attest to the Aug. 27 incident. Still, two weeks later, the officers are on the job and black community leaders are upset that the police department's investigation has been suspended.

"I'm appalled that officers would use this kind of force or that they would become criminals -- that they would be publicly intoxicated, publicly insulting people," said the Rev. Wayne Harris of Concerned Clergy, a group of black ministers. "Then, they became officers again, hiding behind the power of the badge, the power of the state."

Witnesses said about a dozen white men who later turned out to be off-duty members of an elite police unit pummeled a black motorist who stopped and exchanged words with them and then badly beat a white man who came to his aid. At least one officer pulled his gun on the two civilians during the confrontation.

Among the witnesses were women who said they were taunted and three white ministers who were out for the evening with families. They said the men smelled of beer and did not identify themselves as police at first.

One of the police officers also shouted a racial slur at one point, a witness said.

"It was the most unfair thing I ever saw in my life. They were half-drunk," the Rev. Timothy Keep, one of the witnesses, said after the incident. "I told one cop, 'You guys are a disgrace.' ... I mean, he was blowing Budweiser in my face."

On Thursday, some black ministers picketed the City-County Building demanding that the officers be taken off street duty.

"These officers, while still on duty, pose a potential clear and present danger to our community," the Rev. Stephen J. Clay, president of the Interdenominational Ministers' Alliance.

A grand jury and the FBI are looking into the Aug. 27 incident. No charges have been filed against the officers.

The officers haven't been taken off the street because "there's that little thing called due process," police department spokesman David Walker said. "They have a right to an investigation to see who did what to whom."

The two men beaten in the incident were arrested, but prosecutors did not pursue charges.

Site dedicated to black Civil War soldiers

Jennifer Batog
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- After being ignored by history for 130 years, thousands of black soldiers who fought in the Civil War got their due Thursday when the site for a national monument to their efforts was officially dedicated.

Some 185,000 blacks fought in the nation's bloodiest war, alongside and often taking the place of their white captains. But when the war ended, they were largely forgotten, and they were intentionally left out of a 1865 victory parade in Washington.

"The story of the 185,000 soldiers is being told. That's the most important thing," said Richard Burbridge, 61, of New York City. His great-grandfather, Sgt. Maj. Thomas Burbridge, fought in the war with the 114th Regiment out of Lexington, Ky.

"I'm sure he'd be very proud" of the memorial, Burbridge said of his great-grandfather.

Burbridge and about 500 other people attended the ceremony in Washington's historically black Shaw neighborhood, where the African American Civil War Memorial will be built. The neighborhood is named for abolitionist Robert Shaw, who led one of the first black Civil War regiments, the Massachusetts 54th.

District Mayor Marion Barry said Shaw was the perfect place for the monument. "This monument is in the right place. It shouldn't be downtown on the Mall. It shouldn't be somewhere else in Washington. It should be right here in the heart of this community," he said.

Jacqueline Still Burton, whose five distant cousins fought with Philadelphia's 24th Regiment, said she was happy her relatives "are finally being recognized."

"It's a dream come true for our family," Burton, 65, said. "It's the realization of their dreams, because they believed that they would fight and would then be free men."

The memorial is expected to be completed in about a year. It will be a semicircular, 3-foot-high curved stone wall holding stainless steel plaques with the names of the black Union soldiers and the 7,000 white officers who led them. A statue of four black soldiers will face the wall of names.

The ceremony Thursday capped a week of events honoring the "United States Colored Troops," as the fighters were called. Earlier in the week reenactment groups from around the country staged a long-overdue victory parade down Pennsylvania Ave. and laid a wreath at Arlington National Cemetery.

Alabama was a big game, but this one is bigger

Granted, Alabama was a big game for the Bowling Green football program.

The Falcons got national recognition with their respectable showing against the Crimson Tide. A young defense showed its capabilities, and a roughshod offensive unit showed some promising signs.

For BGSU football, it was a grand showing that garnered some much-deserved respect from across the nation.

But in the grand scheme of things, tomorrow's game is bigger for the Falcon football team — much bigger.

This game will do much more in terms of determining the direction for the rest of the season. This game will show us exactly what this team can and can't do.

This game will also determine the mindset of the team heading into what is shaping up already as THE game, next week on the road against the Miami Redskins.

"I said right from the beginning that regardless of what happened at Alabama, the Temple game is going to be huge as far as we are concerned," head coach Gary Blackney said. "It's a home game."

"What we would like to do is re-establish that home field dominance that we had for most of the first four years that we were here. I think it's important for our players' confidence and I think it's important for us to improve that much from game one to game two. To have every aspect of our program in full swing as we head down to Miami (next week) ... we need a lot of things going for us because they are an outstanding football team."

But the Falcons can't overlook the Owls. Temple has been really bad for a long time — last year they were an anemic 2-9, and overall the Owls have lost 10 of their last 11 road games — but things are looking up in 1996.

BG's offense has to get on track early and move the chains, helping check Temple's offense by keeping it off the field. And the defense has to create some opportunities with big plays, i.e. turnovers. The defense gave the Falcons a chance to beat Alabama two weeks ago — it should do as much or more against the Owls.

Remember the old football adage: avoid the big mistakes, and things will generally work out for themselves.

Brown's pick: BG 24, Temple 20.

All in all, the Falcons can give themselves a big lift heading into next week's HUGE game at Miami with a victory. Now that Wasean Tait is out for the year in Toledo, the MAC race is even more wide open than it was, and the Redskins have to be considered the odds-on favorite.

By the way, it would be great to see a big crowd out for the first home game of the season against a major opponent in Temple. Really, 1 p.m. isn't as early as most of you might think on a Saturday.

Check out the "1996 Falcon Football Preview" edition inserted in today's paper. It's 16 pages of all you ever wanted to know about BGSU football.

Temple opposes as BG looks for a win

Scott Brown
The BG News

Bowling Green will be facing a different Temple team tomorrow than the one it rolled to a 37-31 victory over a season ago.

The Falcons ran up a 34-10 second half lead before the Owls captured a few late touchdowns, but this Temple team is much more experienced and much more confident.

BG will definitely have to be on its toes right from kickoff.

"I think it's one word: confidence," Falcon head coach Gary Blackney said of the reason for Temple's turnaround. "They are all a year older. A lot of the same players that we played against a year ago are back this year."

"I think it's a commitment, a dedication, a resolve — that's attitude. Along with the success they've had early on (this year), there has to be a confidence factor there."

The Owls enter the game with a 1-1 record, having defeated Eastern Michigan 28-24 in the season opener before falling 38-34 to Washington State last week.

Temple is led by quarterback Henry Burris, who holds 14 Temple passing records, includ-

"He's playing very, very well," Blackney said.

The key for the Falcons will be keeping Burris from making the big play, of which he and his talented receiving corps are very capable. Flanker Troy Kersey caught seven passes for 178 yards in the season opener and Saturday against Washington State, senior Van Johnson grabbed 11 passes for 144 yards.

"I don't know if there is a lot of dropoff in the Temple receivers," Blackney said, comparing the Owls' wideouts to Alabama's. "I think they are that good."

BG's cross country teams host initial meet Saturday

Jason McMahon
The BG News

There's an old adage that says something to the effect of "those who don't learn from the past are condemned to repeat it." Forgive the BGSU women's and men's cross country teams if they aren't paying attention.

Both squads begin their arduous task of defending last season's Mid-American Conference championships at home Saturday. Ohio University and the University of Toledo will provide the competition in a meet the Falcons hope to use as a stepping stone to continued success.

The women's cause is aided by the fact that they are returning 13 of 16 runners from last year, including the defending individual MAC champion, senior Suzanne Isco. She is one of several headliners on the women's team, but coach Steve Price is far from overconfident.

Sink

Ohio has won the MAC title six out of the past eight years, and they finished a close second to the Falcons in preseason MAC balloting. They also are returning the bulk of their team, and are led by freshman Jackie Conrad. The Merysville, Ohio standout was one of the most highly recruited preps last year.

"It's quite a big meet to start with," Price, last year's MAC Coach of the Year, said. "We want to try and beat OU right here off the bat."

To do that, Price will need a solid effort from his charges. He is counting on, among others:

■ Laura Hall, a senior who has been plagued with a plethora of injuries. Although she has been all-MAC each of her three years, Price feels she is just now beginning to reach her potential, not-

Ohio carries rare undefeated mark heading to Army game

Bring on Nebraska, Tennessee and Florida State. But, first, bring on Army.

Ohio puts a 2-0 record — it's first since 1976 — on the line when it travels to West Point on Saturday. Needless to say, Bobcat boosters are in an uproar.

"It really is an amazing situation," coach Jim Grobe said. "We went from the beginning of the season where everybody said, 'Hey, you'll get killed. You'll be lucky to win a game.' Now all of a sudden, the expectations are that we're just going to keep on winning, like that's the way it should be."

The Bobcats were picked to finish eighth in the Mid-American Conference in preseason media balloting. With 19 wins in the last 11 years, even that might have been overly optimistic for the downtrodden Ohio program.

A shocking 44-14 pounding of Akron in the home opener was followed by an equally shocking 21-10 victory at Hawaii last Saturday. All of a sudden, people are

COMING THIS WEEKEND...

Volleyball team headed for Butler Invitational

This weekend, the Bowling Green volleyball team travels to Indianapolis for the Butler University Invitational. Noon, today, the Falcons take on Middle Tennessee State. This evening, they'll play San Francisco. Saturday, Bowling Green plays the host to the Butler Bulldogs around 1 p.m. Their final game will be against Arkansas State at 5 p.m.

Middle Tennessee State has 5-4 record. However, last year, the Raiders piled up an astounding 32-7 record, and qualified for the NCAA Tournament. The Raiders are coming off a five-games victory over Alabama-Birmingham last Tuesday.

After posting an anemic 9-26 record last year, San Francisco has split the only four games they've played this year. Those four matches all came at their own PowerBar Invitational.

Butler has a 4-3 record so far this young season but is coming off a tournament win at the Saint Louis Invitational. Last year, Butler had an impressive 22-12 record and qualified for the National Invitational Volleyball Championship.

The Indians of Arkansas State also qualified for the NCAA's, but thus far have only a 2-3 record.

The Falcons have the poorest record of the teams at the Butler Invitational at 2-7. They did win Tuesday, against Wright State, in five games.

Soccer team travels to Oxford

The Falcon soccer team is competing in the Kelme Invitational in Oxford this weekend.

MAC rival Miami is hosting the event, which also boasts teams from Central Connecticut and George Washington.

Bowling Green takes on Central Connecticut at 3:15 p.m. Saturday and then meets up with George Washington Sunday at 1 p.m. The team with the best record among the four teams will be considered the champion.

The Falcons are coming off a championship in the Pepsi/Nike Classic in Vermont last weekend.

Tennis team hosts Keefe Invitational

The men's tennis team hosts the annual Keefe Invitational at the Keefe Tennis Courts beginning today and running through Sunday.

Action runs throughout each day of the event.

Women's golf visiting Gopher Invitational

The women's golf team is competing in the Gopher Invitational at Minnesota this weekend.

Shula: Bengals are just trying too hard

Joe Kay
The Associated Press

CINCINNATI -- Coach Dave Shula has a theory for the Cincinnati Bengals' 0-2 start: They're not bad, they're just trying too hard.

Shula thinks the Bengals will start playing up to expectations as soon as they stop trying to meet them. They've done so many things wrong in the first two games that fans already are starting to write them off.

Jeff Blake has thrown more interceptions than touchdowns, Darnay Scott and Carl Pickens have dropped passes, the running game has been running in place and special teams have had one breakdown after another.

"I think Jeff feels he needs to press a little bit to do some things and might be forcing the action a little bit," Shula said. "I'm sure Carl and Darnay feel a little pressure to make a spectacular play because we're not getting it done in other areas. Maybe they're repressing a little bit, too."

There's some support for Shula's theory, but it's not universal. For instance, Blake doesn't buy into it.

His theory is a little different: The Bengals are thinking too much rather than trying to do too much.

"We're not just playing and having fun," Blake said. "We're trying not to mess up so much that we're messing up. We're thinking about it too much instead of just doing it."

"I think I've gotten into that funk, too. You're talking to yourself too much -- try not to do this, try not to do that -- and then you end up doing it anyway. You just talk yourself out of your game, basically."

Blake's numbers show that something's drastically wrong with the offense, which had the 11th-ranked passing attack in the NFL last season. Blake, who went to the Pro Bowl, threw for 3,822 yards last season with 28 touchdowns and 17 interceptions.

In the two games this season, Blake has passed for only 389 yards with two touchdowns and three interceptions.

Knowing that Blake disagrees with his assessment, Shula has been careful to avoid saying that the quarterback is pressing or trying to do too much.

"Jeff, I think, is trying to do too much," Shula said, smiling as he declined to complete the sentence.

"In the first couple of weeks, he has not posted the numbers he did last year," Shula said diplomatically. "At times, he hasn't had time to make decisions. Other times he's had drops (by receivers). He hasn't had a running game to complement what we're trying to do."

And Blake has made some bad decisions, forcing passes that turned into interceptions.

"We have some Pro Bowl caliber guys around here. We've got to start playing like it, including myself," Blake said.

Running back Eric Bieniemy thinks there's something to the notion that the Bengals are uptight, for whatever reason.

"Right now, it's obvious we're just not clicking as a unit," he said. "I think instead of relaxing and playing, we're all trying to make a big play. You've got to understand, you can't force a play to happen. You have to just relax and let it happen."

Whether it's trying too hard or thinking too much, the Bengals are certainly having no fun. Some of them realized it by watching Green Bay beat Philadelphia 39-13 Monday night.

"We just saw in that game how much enthusiasm they had and how hard they were playing," running back Ki-Jana Carter said.

Williams carries Yankees to win

Harry Atkins
The Associated Press

DETROIT -- A year ago, Bernie Williams played a major role in New York's stretch run to a wild-card berth. This season, he might carry the Yankees to a pennant.

Williams drove in eight runs, including a grand slam off the facing of the third deck and a three-run homer, and the AL East-leading Yankees completed a three-game sweep by defeating Detroit 12-3 Thursday.

"It was a great game. We'll certainly take it," said Williams, who seems to thrive on the pressure of a September drive. "When these days come, you just have to enjoy them."

Last season, Williams was hitting .294 before Sept. 1. Then he hit .364 the rest of the way as the Yankees earned the wild-card spot.

"Well, I feel the pressure every day," Williams said. "It just seems to work out well down the stretch. I know there's no tomorrow."

The Yankees arrived at Tiger Stadium having lost 15 of 24, prompting manager Joe Torre to call a 25-minute pregame meeting before the opener. The team responded by scoring 28 runs in three days, and increased its lead to three games over Baltimore, which played Chicago at night.

"Bernie Williams is kind of my wild card," Torre said. "I can bat him anywhere in the lineup, and he's still going to go up there and just be Bernie Williams. I know eight RBIs has to present itself to you. But when it does, you still have to swing the bat and make something happen."

David Cone (6-2) once again overcame a shaky start. He allowed three runs in the first three innings, but no more before leaving after the seventh with a 5-3 lead.

"That is what being a great pitcher is all about," Torre said. "Anybody can go out there with great stuff and do well. When you don't have it, that's when you find out what somebody is all about."

Williams, who had been batting just .268 since the All-Star break after a stellar first half, broke out in a big way, setting a career high for RBIs.

"That was a wonderful game for Bernie," Torre said. "He just looked locked in today. We need somebody like that right now. That takes the pressure off everybody else."

Williams put the Yankees ahead 3-2 in the third with his 25th homer, a right-handed shot in the second deck in left field.

With the score 3-all in the fifth, Williams and Charlie Hayes hit

RBI singles that chased rookie Justin Thompson (1-5).

"It seems like the strike zone shrank a little bit and I had to come in," Thompson said. "They're a bunch of fastball hitters and they took advantage of it."

Hayes and Andy Fox hit solo home runs in the ninth, and then Williams connected left-handed for a long drive to right field off Jose Lima.

"Jose just doesn't seem to pitch well in that situation," Detroit manager Buddy Bell said. "For whatever reason, he seems to do better when it's tighter. Maybe it's concentration. We just wanted to get him some work, but it was more work than we wanted."

Cone, making his third start since coming back from an aneurysm in his right shoulder, won for the second time in his return.

In his first start since surgery, he began the game with two walks before pitching seven no-hit innings in Oakland. In his last outing, Cone gave up three runs on his first five pitches, but allowed no more runs in a seven-inning effort against Toronto.

"The first inning, I was struggling," Cone said. "I don't know why. I guess I've got to find a better way to warm up or something, get ready to go."

Travis Fryman's RBI double and a sacrifice fly by Tony Clark put Detroit ahead 2-0 in the first.

The Tigers tied it at 3 in the third when Williams lost Clark's fly ball in the sun, allowing Fryman to score. The Yankees center fielder avoided an error on the play, however, when he recovered in time to force Bobby Higginson at second.

Higginson had held up at first, thinking Williams would catch the ball. The official scorer credited Clark with a sacrifice fly, ruling that Fryman would have scored anyway.

"One of these days we're going to find the chemistry or ingredient to get over that hump," Bell said. "Right now we just don't have it. We're getting beat by better teams right now. I hope I learn from it and the guys in the other room learn from it and find out what it takes to beat those teams."

Notes: The grand slam by Williams was his second of the season and fourth of his career. It was the third time in his career Williams has homered from each side of the plate. ... Four homers in a game tied the season-high for the Yankees, as did three homers in one inning. ... A throwing error by left fielder Higginson in the seventh was the 40th error by a Detroit outfielder this season. ... Four walks tied Tim Lincecum's career high. He has drawn four walks four times, the last April 20, 1994, at Milwaukee. ... The grand slam was the 12th the Tigers have allowed this season, adding to their single-season record. The previous major league record was 10 by Seattle in 1992. ... The Tigers now have given up 225 homers, just one shy of the major league record by the 1987 Orioles. ... Tigers pitching coach Jon Matlack was reassigned to another position within the organization Thursday. Rick Adair, the Tigers minor league pitching coordinator, will assume Matlack's duties through the rest of the season. It was believed Matlack sought the move for personal reasons. ... Frank O'Rourke, a one-time teammate of Ty Cobb and longtime scout for the Yankees, was inducted Thursday into the Canadian Baseball Hall of Fame. O'Rourke, a native of Hamilton, Ontario, played on six teams from 1912-31, including the Tigers. He died in 1986 at the age of 91.

actually excited about Ohio football for a change.

"A lot of people thought this Hawaii-Army-Northwestern road swing would be so brutal it would just crush us," said Grobe, who was 2-8-1 in his first year at Ohio.

TEMPLE

Of course, the key to shutting down the pass is shutting down the run first.

"It all starts again with our ability to shut down the run," Blackney said. "If you don't shut down the run, you don't even have to worry about getting to the passing phase of it. The success that Temple has had since Burris has been there ... has been riding his arm."

Bowling Green will throw a number of different schemes at Burris, trying on one end to keep

"All of a sudden, our kids play hard and we get some breaks and we won at Hawaii.

"Now everybody's talking about Northwestern and I'm saying, 'What are you-all thinking? Have you ever been to West Point and played those guys? They think they're going to a bowl game!' It's really funny how things change."

Army opens its season with high hopes of improving on last year's 5-5-1 mark and making it to a bowl game.

The Bobcats counter with an option attack guided by quarterback Kareem Wilson, with 206 yards rushing in the two victories while fullback Steve Hookfin had 145 yards at Hawaii.

Ohio has attempted just 10 passes so far this year, completing five for a grand total of 11 yards.

But the Bobcats seem to have an answer for every question so far.

"We're just having fun," Grobe said. "Our kids are playing real hard. They're flying around and they're making a bunch of mistakes, but they're doing some good things, too."

"For a young team, it's hard, but we have to be mature enough to play one game at a time. We're not in any way good enough to start to feel good about ourselves. We're more confident right now, but the scary part is not being overconfident. That's what can happen to a young team. They can feel good about one or two wins.

"I told our team we could lose the next 10. But we can win the next 10, too."

ing, "She's on the verge of being a national class runner."

■ Sophomore transfer Jess LaFene, who has pleased Price with her early season workouts. The Sandusky, Ohio native spent a year at North Carolina before deciding to return home.

■ Senior Renee Strayer, who was right on the heels of Hall and LaFene in a test run a week ago. From Coshocton, Ohio, Strayer is a walk-on who has established herself as one of BGSU's top competitors.

■ Freshmen Nikki Monroe and Shannon Baird should also be running toward the front of the pack come Saturday.

While the team's first goal is to win the meet, Price does not want to stop there. He'd like each of his athletes to beat the respective runner from OU. Doing so would ensure a victory, as a cross country score is compiled by adding up the places of the top five runners and the low score wins. He'd also like to see his top five cross the line before OU's fourth girl.

While the men's goals aren't quite as lofty, make no mistake about it, they want to emerge victorious as well.

Unlike his colleague on the women's side, men's coach Sid Sink is not blessed with a wealth of experience. Lost are the top three performers from last year's MAC championships, and five of the top seven.

"We're still trying to win," Sink said. "That's our main goal."

Returning are juniors Rob Bowman and Jim Weckesser, who finished 19th and 21st, respectively, in the MAC a year ago. Sink is hoping they will help show a young team the hunger and desire necessary to win.

"The guys returning know how great it was (to win the MAC)," Sink said, and he believes his team can do it again. "This team has lots of ability -- whether it's ready to show it or not is the question."

It will be tough, though, as OU boasts of a men's team that was the preseason pick to win the MAC.

"The main thing is we can compete with OU," Sink said. He likes a big challenge to open the campaign. "It's a great first meet, because it will tell us exactly where we are."

For that to be in the "W" column, the men will have to give a performance that Sink believes they have in them. Leading the Falcons into the fray will be junior co-captain Craig Nieset, and sophomores Pat Carney and Dan Flaute.

Nieset "has made huge strides," according to Sink. "He's running stronger than he ever has before." In last week's time trial, he was sandwiched in between Flaute and Carney.

While this meet has no bearing on conference standings, both Price and Sink would like to see their teams start off on the right foot. While a victory is not the only barometer for success, the Falcon women and men would like to send a message that they did indeed learn from the past, and they want to repeat it.

Macintosh. More affordable than ever.

With low student prices on Macintosh® computers, you can start doing whatever it is you want to do. And to make it even easier for you to purchase a Macintosh, apply for the Apple® Computer Loan. So you can take home a Mac, and you won't have to make a payment for 90 days.* How do you get started? Just visit your campus computer store today and pick up a Mac.

Leave your mark.

Visit your campus computer store or <http://campus.apple.com/>

*Offer requires 10% down. 11.99% APR. No prepayment of interest or principal will be required for 90 days. Interest accrues during this 90-day period and will be added to the principal and will bear interest, which will be included in the repayment schedule. For example, the monthly rate of 11.99% has an interest rate of 12.15% with an Annual Percentage Rate (APR) of 12.15%. A monthly payment of $12.15 for the first 90 days will result in a total loan amount of $1,111.50, which includes a simple purchase price of $1,000 and a 11.5% loan origination fee. Interest is variable based on the Prime Rate as reported on the 1st business day of the month in The Wall Street Journal, plus a spread of 1.0%. Monthly payment and APR shown assumes deferment of principal and does not include state or local sales tax. The Apple Computer Loan has a 10-year loan term with no prepayment penalty and is subject to credit approval. Monthly payments may vary depending on actual computer costs and price. Paid loan amounts, rates and local sales taxes and a change in the monthly variable interest rate. ©1996 Apple Computer, Inc. All rights reserved. #### PLACEMENT SCHEDULE

Bowling Green State University
Career Services
Campus Recruitment Calendar
For the weeks of:
Sept. 30, 1996 through Oct. 18, 1996
Scheduling On-Campus Interviews:
Interview sign-ups for the recruiting period Sept. 30, 1996 through Oct. 18, 1996, will begin with Open Interview Sign-up on Monday, September 16, 1996, at 5pm. Students who have received letters of invitation for Pre-Selection Interviews may start sign-up on Wednesday, October 2, 1996, at 5 p.m. to select their reserved interview time. Beginning at 5 p.m. on Friday, October 3, 1996, any registered student and alumnus may access the sign-up system for General Sign-ups of pre-selection only schedules. Please note: normally pre-selected students access all schedules first, however, due to late news of companies receiving resumes, open schedules are accessible first for this sign-up period. All interview schedules remain on-line until two days prior to the organization's visit. A message not available for sign-ups indicates that a schedule is off-line. In this instance, please call the office directly at 372-2356 to schedule an interview appointment.

Accessing the Placement System:

1. Dial 372-9899. (You must be registered with Resume Expert Plus)
2. Press 1 if you wish to schedule an appointment with a visiting employer, press the 1 key. If you would like to hear Placement News, press the 2 key. Press the 3 key if you have been pre-selected by an employer. Press the 4 key to access the Alumni VP Service. Press the 5 key to hear your confirmed appointments. Press the star (*) key to quit.
3. Enter your Identification Number. (The number you used on your Resume Expert Plus disk).
4. Enter the seven-digit schedule number for the employer with whom you would like to schedule an interview (this number is located on the Campus Recruiting Calendar, to the left of the position title.)

If you have entered a valid number the system will play the message:

"You have selected (name of organization), if this is correct press the pound (#) key to continue or the star (*) key to choose another organization."

The system will now verify that you meet the requirements, as specified by the employer. If you meet the requirements, you can proceed. Otherwise, the system will play a message which explains why you are unable to sign-up with the employer. Should you wish to be considered by this employer, add your name to the Waiting List and submit a copy of your Placement Data Sheet.

5. Press the 1 key for a morning interview, press the 2 key for an afternoon interview, or press the 3 key for the next available time. (Press either 1, 2 or 3).

Once you have selected a time, then you may press the pound (#) key to accept the time, or press the star (*) key to reject the time. When you press the pound (#) key, the system will play the message: "An interview has been reserved for you at (time). Press the star (*) key to schedule an interview with another organization or the pound key to return to start."

6. Repeat steps 4 and 5 to schedule additional interviews.

7. Bring a copy of your Placement Data Sheet on high quality resume paper within 48 hours to the Sign-up Room adjacent to the Career Services' reception area, 360 Saddlemeire Student Services Building. Place your data sheet on the top shelf of the employer's mailbox. Please take any available recruiting literature which was forwarded by the organization and review the employer's file in the Center for Career Resources prior to your interview. Failure to submit your Placement Data Sheet within 48 hours may result in your removal from the interview schedule without notification.

Please remember: if you are unable for any reason to sign-up for an interview, you will be asked whether you wish to add your name to the Waiting List. Students are encouraged to get on Waiting Lists. Should the employer send another recruiter or modify the position requirements (i.e. lower GPA requirements), you will be notified directly for an interview. You must also submit a Placement Data Sheet for every Waiting List.

Consult the Career Services' homepage (<http://www.bgsu.edu/offices/careers/index.html>) or listen to Placement News (press 2) to keep informed of changes or additions to interview schedules, or other Career Services programs.

Cancellation of Interview Appointments: Cancellation of an interview must be reported in person to the Career Services no later than 5pm one week (7 full days) before the interview day. Complete a cancellation card in the Sign-up Room of Career Services. You can not cross your name off an interview schedule. Late cancellations will result in forfeiture of sign-up privileges for the next recruiting period.

No Show Policy: No-shows are missed interview appointments. Employers become very upset when students miss their scheduled appointments which harms BGSU's reputation in the market place. The penalty for a no-show is immediate suspension of your sign-up privileges for the next recruiting period. To reinstate your sign-up privileges, you are required to write a letter of apology to the employer for missing the interview, bring this letter along with an addressed, stamped envelope, and meet with a staff member to explain your behavior. Any student who "no-shows" twice will be denied interviewing privileges for the remainder of the academic year.

Notice of Citizenship Requirements: If an employer is willing to interview international students, this will be noted in the position requirements.

Spotlight Presentations: Spotlight presentations offer valuable information about career paths, detailed position responsibilities and organizational philosophy. All students scheduling interviews are strongly encouraged to attend appropriate Spotlights. Please carefully note dates, times and locations of Spotlight presentations, as they may vary. Consult the Campus Recruitment Calendar for dates, times and locations.

Additional Placement Services: There are important services available to you at the Career Services. Please note that not all organizations and companies regularly recruit on college campuses. The list below generally reflects the high demand areas in the world of work. Please do not become discouraged if your career field is not requested. Each day, the staff of Career Services refers registered students directly to employers who have positions in a wide variety of career fields. We also assist you in conducting a job search through the following services: career and placement counseling, VIP professional vacancy hotline, job search workshops, professional development seminars, career fairs and the Falcon Career Connection. The Center for Career Resources contains a wealth of information about careers, employers and current job vacancies in ALL fields.

YOU MUST SUBMIT A COPY OF YOUR LASER PRINTED PLACEMENT DATA SHEET WITHIN 48 HOURS AFTER SIGNING UP. FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH THIS POLICY MAY RESULT IN YOUR REMOVAL FROM THE INTERVIEW SCHEDULE.

Type O Negative shows progress

Aaron Weisbrod
The BG News

On Type O Negative's 1993 release, "Bloody Kisses," Peter Steele and company turned to the angriest, darkest and most depressed parts of their souls for lyrical and musical inspiration.

The result was two hit singles ("Black No. 1" and "Christian Woman"), a Gold record and opening slots for bands that ranged from Nine Inch Nails to Danzig to Queensryche to Pantera.

After a year and a half of almost solid touring, however, Type O Negative returned to the studio to begin work on what would soon become the band's fourth release.

Obviously the Brooklyn-based quartet could have turned back to the same inspirational formula that they used on their last album, but instead Type O Negative drew upon slightly different inspirations for "October Rust."

In a recent phone interview, Type O Negative's resident drummer Johnny Kelly explained that "Black Sabbath and The Beatles ... And a lot of sixties pop" largely influenced the band's direction on their latest release.

"Our age was showing a bit on this album," he quipped.

When discussing the new album's slightly different sound (see the "October Rust" CD review in this issue for more details on the album itself) Kelly admitted it indisputably was an unexpected change in technique for the band. "When Peter [Steele] was coming up with ideas for songs and bringing them to us we were kind of surprised in the beginning because it was stuff that we really weren't familiar with either, and we had to get in the same frame of mind as to where the influences were being drawn from," Kelly said. "It was certainly different enough from 'Bloody Kisses,' and especially the first album 'Slow, Deep, and Hard.' At first we were like, 'Wow, this is pretty weird,' but then we unanimously decided that it was an interesting direction to pursue."

Literally right after leaving the studio upon completion of "October Rust" Type O Negative went on the road, opening for none other than Ozzy Osbourne, in a six-week touring stint.

"At first you become a little taken back by it, maybe it seems like there's a little more pressure

'October Rust' contains heavy 1960's influence

Aaron Weisbrod
The BG News

The first time I played "October Rust," I wasn't quite sure what to think of Type O Negative's latest offering.

Sure, the album still contained the inhumanly deep vampire-esque voice of Peter Steele crooning out lyrics that released the tortured contents of his hopelessly romantic heart, but upon my first listen to the CD I fell under the impression that all the money Mr. Steele and company made from their previous gold record "Bloody Kisses" had dulled the angry edge I found so appealing in the aforementioned metal/power/gothic opus.

Never one to give up hope, however, I gave the disc a second listen. After all, in the band's biography Peter Steele claimed that "each time you listen to the album you're going to hear something else."

Yet again, the six-foot-six Brooklyn native was correct.

Upon my first listen to the album I had failed to pick up on the small but important intricacies that served to push this disc over the edge of "pretty decent" and into the domain of "relatively ass-kicking."

As I continued to listen to "October Rust" I began to more firmly recognize the trademark lyrics of anger, love, lust, depression and death that were just as present on this album as they were on Type O Negative's other three releases. Here they are just more subtle and, dare I say it, tenderly romantic.

Mind you that while many of Type O Negative's songs do tend to border on the gothic side of things, please don't fall under the misconception that "October Rust" is nothing more than a 73-minute-long disc that churns out monotonous, brooding and boring vocals and about monotonous, brooding and boring topics.

Songs like "Wolf Moon," "Red Water (Christmas Mourning)" and the poppish radio single "My Girlfriend's Girlfriend" are all strong and rocking songs, while tracks like "Green Man" and "In Praise of Bacchus" manage to wonderfully blend the trademark power and passion of Type O Negative.

Oh yeah, this album also contains a cover of the Neil Young classic "Cinnamon Girl."

Much like on Type O Negative's previous albums, most of the songs on the disc clock in at at least six to seven minutes, so don't pick this disc up expecting some light listening.

Pick this disc up expecting to hear a structurally complex album that flows with a beautiful, romantic, yet slightly remorseful, amount of ease.

"October Rust" is another solid contribution from the Type O Negative camp. If you didn't like them before, you probably won't like them now. If you've enjoyed their previous albums, however, then you'll probably dig this one, too.

But if you're one of those few people out there who hasn't taken the time to check out Type O Negative yet, now's probably the perfect time to do so.

'Bulletproof' dream team is a big disappointment

Scott Shriner
The BG News

Damon Wayans and Adam Sandler together in a movie doesn't sound like a bad idea at all. Best known for their antics on "In Living Colour" and "Saturday Night Live," respectively, the two comedians would seem to be a "dream team" for a funny action comedy.

The problem is, though, that "Bulletproof" is not very funny. The movie can't decide whether it wants us to laugh or to actually take its story seriously. So it ends up not doing either very often.

Wayans plays Rock Keats, an undercover cop who has gotten friendly with a small-time criminal, Archie Moses (Sandler). Archie trusts Keats enough to bring him in on a big drug deal, but his trust backfires on him when Keats reveals his true identity and arrests him.

The rest of the film focuses on the former friends' journey to California, where Archie is to testify against his former druglord boss who disowned him after the deal went awry (The drug king pin, incidentally, is played by James Caan ("The Godfather"), who is much too good of an actor to be playing a plastic villain like this).

None of this comes off as particularly interesting or original, and the subsequent obligatory action scenes are nothing to get excited about, either. Anyone who knows this "Lethal Weapon"-type genre will recognize most of the plot devices used here. In fact, the final shoot-out scene is shamelessly lifted straight from "Beverly Hills Cop," which was a pretty cliched movie itself.

Basically there aren't any surprises in the story department.

The one fresh element that "Bulletproof" should have taken advantage of was the presence of Sandler and Wayans. Both of them are talented enough comedians that they could have saved this movie by doing what they do best.

Sadly, they don't do what they do best. Wayans seems pretty bored the whole time, showing very little of his usual energy, whether it be comic or not. Sandler spends much of the movie yelling at Wayans at the top of his lungs. "How could you DO this to me?!" he shouts at least 10 times, still brooding over the fact that his friend turned out to be a cop. This gets old very fast.

There are a couple of pretty funny sequences, including a bit where Sandler, in the shower, belts out "I Will Always Love You" in his trademark squeaky style. But the good laughs are so few and far between that they almost seem out of place in this otherwise dreary and predictable movie.

Also, the relationship between Wayans and Sandler, a central element to the movie, seems fairly contrived and forced. Neither of the characters ever come across as people to seriously care about.

There are a few scattered parts where Sandler's character almost seems like a real person, but these moments are overshadowed by inappropriate (and unsuccessful) attempts to be funny. Maybe if a decision had been made somewhere to make Sandler's Archie either strictly for laughs or as an actual, believable character, it might have been more interesting. But that's not the case. To quote Sandler's character, "There's a lot of gray area there."

That's the main roadblock that "Bulletproof" stumbles over, in general. It can't make up its mind. Does it want to be a comedy or an action film? It doesn't matter, really, because it doesn't do either very well. Fans of these guys would be much better off with silly stuff like "Billy Madison" or "Major Payne." At least there, they get to strut their stuff.

"Bulletproof" is now showing at Woodland Mall Cinemas.

Welcome to 'first' issue of Back Pages

Welcome to what we here at The BG News are considering the first ever installment of "The Back Pages!"

I'm sure some of you out there are thinking to yourselves "Wait a minute, didn't an installment of 'The Back Pages' run last week?"

Well, technically there was a section of the paper called "The Back Pages" last Friday, but most parties involved (myself included) felt that it wasn't a fair representation of this campus, nor what we wanted "The Back Pages" to stand for ... So let's just pretend it didn't happen, OK?

Thanks. To make a long story short, "The Back Pages" is pretty much the love child of last year's entertainment magazine "Weekend Reality." As some of you out there are aware, last Spring marked the final semester of the popular publication due to a number of reasons too numerous to list right now.

Well, nobody on campus (again, myself included) wanted to see The News go without an entertainment section every Friday, so some of the big-wigs got together with some of us here at The News (yet again, myself included), and the resulting product is the one that you're currently holding in your hot little hands.

Basically we're going to be covering local/regional/national music, movies, plays, the bar scene and anything else that we think you guys and gals out there will enjoy reading.

We're also looking for people who would be interested in writing stories on such topics. If this sounds like something you might like to do, drop me a line at 210 West Hall or aaron@bgnet.bgsu.edu. We'd love to have you aboard!

Wow ... now that was zealous. This week we've got articles on the new movie "Bulletproof" (a movie I liked but Scott didn't), as well stuff on Type O Negative (after all, it is Friday the 13), White Zombie and Bill Monroe, the now deceased creator of bluegrass.

I'm pretty new to all of this editor stuff, so don't be shy about dropping me a line to give us your comments.

As Beavis and Butt-head can tell you, all reader mail is greatly appreciated and handled with the utmost respect ...

Rollins 'dumps' on everything in book

PHILADELPHIA -- Racism. Sexism. Street violence. Drug abuse. The hedonistic, heartless, apathetic America of the 1990s.

Everything annoys author-rocker Henry Rollins. And that everything makes up a chapter of his latest book, "Eye Scream."

Rollins calls the chapter
"Everything" a section "where I could just dump." And dump he does.

"It's one long exhale," he says. "It's basically just my disgust and fear of what this country is. It's an amazing place, but at the same time, it's the scariest place I've ever been."

"It's an intense culture we live in, and it's so crass -- it's nightmarish, it's vulgar. That's what the book was trying to get across -- it is burning and we're all playing violin."

Rollins reads the chapters
"Everything" and "Nothing" on a CD "audio book"; some sections are backed by the dis-sonant, erratic jazz of Rashied Ali (on drums) and Charles Gayle (on saxophone, violin, and piano). Rollins has known Gayle for some time; he plays on an upcoming Rollins Band album and has played live with them. And Gayle is doing his own album for Rollins' label, 2.13.61 Records.

"These guys play a pretty aggressive, troubled kind of music, which I think really fits the mood of that piece," Rollins said. "That's the jazz that interests me very much."

Many sections of the book deal with relationships; the first, "Mekanic," examines
"the hypocrisy of morality and the nuts and bolts of sexual mechanics," Rollins said.

"(It's saying) 'I'm the embodiment of all that stuff that at parties you say you're not into,

but when you're alone, you do," he said. "I don't necessarily believe or support all the opinions in that section, but the goal was to play devil's advocate."

Rollins, 35, is at turns violent and macho and tender and vulnerable. He is also at times very funny.

"I have that macho side because I enjoy it," he said. "I think men should have it ... without being intimidating and date-raping and all that stuff. I have some sensitivity because I'm not stupid. I'm aware of my emotions."

Rollins has strong opinions about the defilement of women, but admits that women in general baffle him. In one scene in the chapter "Suffocation and Solitude," he describes a stripper who fellates a gun as part of her act; she then blows her brains out with the weapon. He calls strip bars boring and depressing.

"To me, it sets women back and it weakens men," he said.

Rollins spares no vitriol for drunks and drug abusers; Rollins said chemicals were never a temptation for him.

"I've always thought that alcohol, drugs, and tobacco were a government ploy to keep people mediocre, in harness, and shutting up and going to work at Pizza Hut daily," he said.

Bluegrass legend dies

The Associated

NASHVILLE -- Bill Monroe, who combined fast-picking mandolin, banjo and guitar with a "high lonesome" singing style to create the distinctly American sound known as bluegrass, died Monday. He was 84.

The Father of Bluegrass died at a hospice in Springfield, just north of country music's capital, after suffering a stroke earlier this year.

Monroe influenced bluegrass legends like Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs, as well as newer stars such as Ricky Skaggs and Alison Krauss.

"There's probably nobody really on the face of the Earth that ever influenced more music than Bill Monroe," Skaggs said. "In all of history, he's the biggest single influence in country music. And he didn't just influence country music, he influenced music in general."

Scruggs, who started his career in Monroe's band, recalled those days as "a wonderful time."

"It was a band that really fit together. We seemed to work off each other's energy," he said. "It was a new sound for that day and time, and it's one that he's kept ever since."

Monroe's son, James, checked on him last week before heading for the annual bluegrass festival Monroe started at his Indiana campground, Bean Blossom, and learned of his father's death
Monday after he arrived home.

"He looked pretty good, but evidently his heart gave out,"
James Monroe said.

Monroe's best known song was "Blue Moon of Kentucky," which he wrote in 1946 and which Elvis Presley also recorded in 1954 on his way to stardom. Other records included "Kentucky Waltz," "Mule Skinner Blues,"

"Pike County Breakdown" and
"A Letter From My Darling."

As a singer, songwriter and instrumentalist, Monroe was a headliner around the world and was honored at the White House.
He sold more than 50 million records and remained active well into his 80s, despite bouts with cancer, pneumonia and heart trouble.

"I love to play music and hear it," he told The Associated Press in 1989. "I love to put the sounds and notes in there that I want to hear. I want to do the best I can for my friends and fans sitting out there in the audience."

Bluegrass music relies heavily on banjos, mandolins, acoustic guitars and fiddles, with lightning-fast picking and a yodeling vocal style. It gets its name from Monroe's band, the Blue Grass
Boys, and the grass of his native
Kentucky.

Monroe could play most of the string instruments but was best known as a mandolinist. While performing, he nearly always wore a coat and tie, with a white cowboy hat crowning his silver hair.

In the 1940s, he hired Flatt and Scruggs -- Flatt on guitar, Scruggs on banjo -- and they became two of the most acclaimed musicians in bluegrass history.
Monroe, a proud man, was said to have refused to speak to the pair for more than 20 years after they left him in the late '40s.

Monroe was elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame in 1970. He played on the Grand Ole

Opry from 1939 throughout his career. He won the National Medal of the Arts in 1995.

Monroe was born near Rosine, known as the Hall of Fame and Uncle Pen Day Festival.

He performed for several years with his brothers Birch and Charlie before he and Charlie had an early hit in 1936 with
"What Would You Give (In Exchange for Your Soul)." After the two split in 1938, Charlie went on to form his own successful band, the Kentucky Pardners.

Monroe lived on a 288-acre spread in Goodlettsville, Tenn., just north of Nashville, when he wasn't on one of his almost incessant tours.

"Bluegrass has brought more people together and made more friends than any music in the world," Monroe said in 1978.
"You meet people at festivals and renew acquaintances year after year."

Survivors include his son and one grandson. A daughter, Melissa, died in 1990.

Visitation is scheduled Tuesday at Madison Funeral Home and Wednesday at The Ryman Auditorium, former home of the Grand Ole Opry. Funeral services will be held at the Ryman at 10 a.m. Wednesday and at 2 p.m.
Thursday at Rosine Methodist Church in Monroe's Kentucky hometown. Burial will be in Ro-sine Cemetery.

Ky., the youngest of eight children. He learned to play after he was orphaned at 11 and taken in by his uncle Pendleton Vandiver, a talented fiddler. In tribute, Monroe wrote one of his biggest hits, "Uncle Pen," and founded the annual bluegrass gathering

Party schools named

The Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. -- Go, Seminoles! Florida State University is No. 1 -- in partying.

FSU was named the top-ranked party school nationwide in the latest Princeton Review's "Advantage Guide to the Best 310 Colleges."

It dethroned three-time champion University of Rhode Island, which banned alcohol on campus
last year. George Washington University in Washington was

No. 2 and arch-rival University of Florida came in third.

"Oh that's good," said Tom Guillot, a 22-year-old junior at FSU. "We beat 'em again. We beat 'em in everything."

Florida State was ranked fourth in partying in the guide's first edition in 1993 and then came in second three years in a row behind Rhode Island. This is the first year it's in first place.

So, does that mean the Seminoles are last in academics?

"If you read the whole thing,
it's really not all bad," said FSU
President Sandy D'Alemberte, noting the nice things the guide says about the friendly atmosphere, good climate and "bargain-basement" tuition.

The Princeton Review, the New Jersey-based company that provides test preparation classes and is not affiliated with Princeton University, publishes the annual guide to colleges for high school seniors.

'New' Zombie contrasts old

Blake Parkins
The BG News

If you are a psychoholic White Zombie fan, you may have been awaiting the release of their latest album, "Supersexy Swingin' Sounds," a disc that contains remixes of previously released tracks from Astro Creep 2000.

The foldout artwork is a collage of women in revealing apparel that look like they just stepped off of a James Bond set. The models pose provocatively in hammocks and 60s backdrops -- a sharp contrast to the 21st century techno beats that comprise most of the cuts.

The insert describes the remix album as "intricate arrangements and a strong rhythmic drive [to] create a fresh experience for today's sophisticated listener."

The album also utilizes a full orchestra that includes woodwinds, trumpets, trombones, full rhythm section, violas, violins and marimba.

The orchestra provides a very deep and rich sound to most of the songs, but it's the "strong rhythmic drive" that I find too constricting and robotic. It makes you want to break-dance and go into convulsions.

The monotone techno rhythm is undoubtedly better suited for dancing than listening. Most White Zombie fans wouldn't be caught dead in the dance clubs that would play these cuts, however. I think that Zombie is trying to appeal to a wider range of listeners who they may have ostracized in the past.

If you like techno/dance music, there is a good chance that this music will fit into your collection nicely. If you are a traditional Zombie fan however, I suggest you listen to the album before you drop $15 for music that has few remnants of the former Zombie pieces.

Evolotto has heavy groove

Aaron Welsbrod
The BG News

"Well, we hooked-up back in the spring of 1992 and did some all-ages local shows with Scott Kramer of Yesteryear ... But we became Evolotto in the Spring of 1994." Reminisced Schmid, the lead screecher and bass player of the Bowling Green-based power trio Evolotto.

Schmid, along with bandmates Chris Sobb (guitar) and Ben Bomlitz (drums), creates a sound that Schmid describes as a "hardcore psychedelic groove."

"I think of it as a cross between Tool and Cream, or something like that," Schmid furthered.

The band's sound has also been compared to Korn, The Melvins, Big Black and Unsane by past listeners.

Although the band has performed a number of gigs outside of Northwest Ohio, Evolotto has always concentrated on performing in this area, and consequently one of their biggest shows to date will be taking place at The Asylum in Toledo on September 20 when they open for PORN FLAKES.

"We've got a lot to prove right now." Commented Schmid with more than a hint of anticipation in his voice.

"It's not too often that a Bowling Green band gets to play on [The Asylum's] mainstage, and we're doing it on a Friday night with PORN FLAKES, a band that just got off the 'Vans [skateboarding shoe] Wharped Tour'" (a national traveling concert which featured 'underground' bands as well as skateboarding and dirt-bike exhibitions).

When asked how it felt to be personally invited to open for PORN FLAKES, Schmid displayed even more excitement.

"They're getting pretty big ... and they seem to like us enough to have us play with them at a big show in their hometown ..."

Evolotto is especially excited

"It's not too often that a Bowling Green band gets to play on [The Asylum's] mainstage, and we're doing it on a Friday night with PORN FLAKES, a band that just got off the 'Vans [skateboarding shoe] Wharped Tour.'"

show if all goes according to plan.

Some of Schmid's personal favorite new songs include "Long Goodbyes," "Real Men Drink Malt Liquor Forties," "Face-tious" (a fast paced, angry, hardcore/rap song sung in alternating lyrics by both Schmid and Bomlitz) and "Two Cells Short of My Freak" (a song sung entirely by Bomlitz).

"Ben's a great singer, a great songwriter and a great drummer ..." Schmid explained.

Along with their September 20 show opening for PORN FLAKES and Hogscaper (from Cincinnati) at The Asylum in Toledo, Evolotto will also be playing at Whit's End in Toledo on September 15 with the Amphetamine Reptile Recording artists Hammerhead, as well as at the Aerotech Benefit Concert at Howard's Club H September 19 with State of Green, Jinkies and Choke Sympathy.

RELOADING

Brother tandem of Kevin and Joe O'Neill, the Falcons' starting inside linebackers, lead a strong young defensive unit.

1995 was a season of firsts for the Bowling Green football program—firsts that the Falcons would sooner forget. After a promising showing against national power Alabama in the season opener two weeks ago, the Falcons are confident that 1996 will return to where it belongs: fighting for the top spot in the Mid-American Conference.

1996 BOWLING GREEN STATE UNIVERSITY FOOTBALL TEAM

Falcons seek return to past glory

After a nightmarish 1995 season, BG expects to be back in the hunt in 1996

Two weeks ago, in front of 76,878 at Legion Field in Birmingham, Ala., the Falcon football team may have discovered something.

The outcome of the game was 21-7 in favor of the University of Alabama. On paper, it was simply a 14-point loss.

But in the minds of Bowling Green's players, that respectable showing against one of America's great programs instilled a renewed confidence in a squad that floundered on the way to an unremarkable 5-6 record a season ago.

"I hope nobody can be that bad," quipped sixth-year head coach Gary Blackney, referring to this year's prospects.

Pundits, locally and nationally, had generally predicted another middle-of-the-pack finish in 1996, but since the Alabama game — a game where the Falcons had a legitimate shot at victory — whispers are being heard about another run at a Mid-American Conference title.

"I feel like our kids went in with a lot of poise and a lot of composure in what I consider one of the greatest atmospheres in college football in Legion Field against a great football team," Blackney said. "I really think that that is going to have some significant positive effects for our football team down the road."

The schedule works against the Falcons. After tomorrow's game, BG plays two of its next three games on the road against Miami and Toledo, the MAC's two prohibitive favorites.

"We don't have any margin for error," said junior linebacker Kevin O'Neill. "We have a young team, and we have to be on our toes from the very beginning if we want a chance at a MAC title."

That was not the case in 1995, when a much-heralded BG team fell apart midway through the season and never fully recovered from a rash of injuries that resulted in the first losing record in Blackney's otherwise stellar career.

"I think that the frustration that came out of last season is fuel for preparation for the upcoming ing season," Blackney said. "I think there is a high energy level on the staff and the players. That disappointment (from last season) just kind of lingers."

Many questions remain. A relatively new offensive line will be counted on to protect sophomore quarterback Bob Niemet, who the Falcons hope can blossom into the fine Division I quarterback they are hoping for. The defense turned in a tremendous effort against Alabama, but the secondary showed some loopholes that need to be corrected.

Still, BG showed against Alabama what it is capable of. And there is an optimism and confidence about this team that was sorely lacking in 1995.

"I don't think we really have anything to prove except to ourselves," O'Neill said. "We are not trying to defy the critics or anything like that. More than anything, we let ourselves down last year and I think this past summer and spring ball have shown that the guys are really hungry."

"We want to get things back to where they should be and get back to where we belong: at the top of this conference."

Brotherly love on the field

Kevin and Joe O'Neill a dynamic combination

Many were impressed with what freshman Joe O'Neill did for the Falcons against Alabama on Aug. 31. He had 17 tackles, leading the team in his first-ever collegiate game.

Even his big brother was impressed - even if Joe might have outdone his own debut.

"That kind of reminded me of my first game," Kevin O'Neill said with a bit of a chuckle. "It was almost like I was reliving my first game."

So it goes for the O'Neill brothers, starting side-by-side at inside linebacker for the Bowling Green football team.

Kevin, a junior, had a pretty decent debut in his first big Falcon game, as well: he had 14 tackles, two of them for a loss, to lead the team to a win over Miami in his first career start in 1994.

Smashing debuts aside, the O'Neill duo is fast becoming a fearsome commodity in the Mid-American Conference. Kevin, a third-year letter winner and second-year full-time starter, was already considered one of the MAC's best linebackers heading into the season.

Now the little brother is in the mix, offering opponents twice the headaches.

"We aren't playing them because they are brothers," head coach Gary Blackney explained. "We are playing them because they are the best two players we have at those positions."

It is a dream come true for the pair from Twinsburg, Ohio, outside of Akron.

"We've talked about it since we were little," Joe said. "Since I decided to come here, it's definitely been a goal of mine to start alongside him and hopefully have that chance to play with him."

"It's been really special. It's been something we've always dreamed of, and now it's a reality."

Both O'Neill's played football at Walsh Jesuit High School, one of the nation's most heralded programs. This season is the first that the two have been able to play on the same team at the same time.

Kevin is a sports management major who walked-on the team as a true freshman in 1993. Joe, still undecided on his major, red-shirted last year and has burst upon the scene in 1996.

As expected, there are more similarities between the two than differences.

"We are real similar players," Kevin said. "We both run pretty well and we are very athletic. When I watch him, it's like watching myself out there."

That can be accredited to the genetic similarities, but Joe admits to emulating much of what his older brother does.

"Everything I've ever tried to do, I've either learned from him or watched him do," Joe said. "I've always been the younger brother and I've always been the one watching him play and a couple years down the road I was always the one to follow him."

One of the choices that Joe emulated was coming to Bowling Green.

"I don't think it was too difficult of a choice when he came here, met the coaching staff and saw the relationships that I had built up," Kevin said.

The two stay close off the football field, as well. Although they live on opposite ends of town, they regularly spend time at each other's residences.

Both admit that it isn't always roses, however. The brother bantering does turn negative at times, but both have made a commitment to do whatever they can to keep football from vastly impacting their personal lives.

"We're brothers and we do get along, but we do have our times when we have differences," Joe said. "Like every brother, we do have our differences. It's usually just something to laugh about when it's all said and done."

And now the tough question: Which one of them is better?

Both laugh and take a respectable amount of time before answering.

"I think we complement each other pretty well," Kevin said in his best diplomatic voice.

"Oh, he's definitely better," Joe smiled. "Definitely."

If anything, Joe definitely has some big shoes to fill, or at least play alongside.

Falcons look to youth on defense in '96

If the starters on the Falcon defensive unit were to make a movie, a good title might be "Young Guns."

That is exactly what the Falcon defense will be in 1996: young, but very much capable of shooting down opponents left and right.

Only three projected defensive starters for tomorrow's home opener against Temple are seniors.

And judging from the superior performance put up against Alabama in the season opener Aug. 31 - they played much better even than the 21 points might indicate - the Falcons are on track to have an outstanding defensive team.

"Right now, the main thing is getting this team back where it is supposed to be," junior inside linebacker Kevin O'Neill said. "After the season we had last year ... the feeling that we had week in and week out after games it something I never want to experience again."

Tony Everhart

Dave Bruhowski

"My main emphasis heading into this season is putting Bowling Green back on top where it belongs."

The defense was indeed ho-hum in 1995, finishing "only" fourth in the MAC in total defense.

That, compared to being second or first each of the preceding years.

"We went from an outstanding defense to an O.K. defense."

DEFENSE

head coach Gary Blackney said. "We want to be better, we need to be better."

The strength of the defense should again be in the linebacking corps, where O'Neill anchors a unit relatively short on experience but long on talent.

O'Neill has started each of the last 15 games over the past three seasons, and was second in the MAC in tackles per game last year.

O'Neill will be one of the starters at inside linebacker, while the other starter should be his brother Joe, a freshman. The younger O'Neill led BG with 17 tackles against Alabama. Adam Lige should also see considerable playing time.

At the outside linebacker spots, Brian Manns and J.P. Mershon are the projected starters and should complement the O'Neill's at inside linebacker.

The linebackers as a whole shined against Alabama.

"It's a good springboard heading into the rest of the season," O'Neill said. "We have a big challenge ahead of us in the early part of our schedule. We've played fairly well. I think it gives us some confidence going into the early MAC games."

While the linebackers should be the strength of the defense, the front line won't be a slouch, either.

Dave Bruhowski, one of the three seniors, starts at end. He along with nose guard Dan King and one of either Damon Smith or Gardner Howard at tackle provide the Falcons with versatility.

The secondary may be the key to the Falcons' success, however. The backs showed some holes against Alabama, but the coaching staff is confident those problems will be solved.

Senior Tony Everhart leads the way at cornerback along with junior Demetrius Carr. Both saw a lot of playing time last season.

Junior Williams and Chioke Bradley make up the safety corps.

Offense

Line will be key to Falcon hopes

Blackney thinks highly of front five

It's not hard to pinpoint the key to the success of the Falcon offense in 1996.

With a strong receiving corps and what should be a consistent running game, it will be the offensive line and its ability to protect Bob Niemet — one of the nation's most talented young quarterbacks — that could very well tell the story for Bowling Green.

"My biggest concern right now is our offensive line," coach Gary Blackney said. "Will we be able to protect Bob Niemet? Especially from a depth standpoint, the offensive line will be a crucial part to our success."

Injuries decimated the Falcons' front five a year ago, leading to an almost comical scene from week to week. And with the graduation losses of All-MAC performers Chad Bukey and Cal Bowers, BG will be forced to turn to some young, unproven players in 1996.

"Any offense depends on the offensive line," said senior tailback Courtney Davis. "We don't have experience as far as games, but as far as experience and as far as being here for years, we have three four-year players up front. They haven't played, but I think they are good players."

Leading the line will be someone who has played, fifth-year senior Shawn George. He has started all 22 games the past two seasons, and will again anchor the front line from the left guard position.

He is joined by two other players on the line who saw extensive playing time a season ago. John Kuck, who started 10 games last year, will be the mainstay at center while right tackle Sam Hemke, a projected starter in 1995, saw limited action after a preseason shoulder injury.

Steve Sheets, a senior transfer from Ohio State, has seen little playing time at Bowling Green but gets the nod at left tackle. And at right guard, red-shirt freshman Chad McCarthy will be counted on.

Mike Faragalli

Faragalli returns to lead BG offense

Perhaps Falcon junior center John Kuck sums up the return of offensive coordinator Mike Faragalli best:

"It's kind of like an old pair of jeans," Kuck explained with a twinge of a grin running across his face.

"You feel comfortable in an old pair of jeans. That's kind of how it feels to have coach Faragalli back. It's a confidence boost to everyone."

Faragalli was the offensive coordinator during head coach Gary Blackney's first four years at Bowling Green — and what a four years it was.

"It's kind of like an old pair of jeans. That's kind of how it feels to have coach Faragalli back."

— John Kuck
Falcon center

The Falcons led the MAC in scoring three times during those four years and never fell below third in total offense on the way to a pair of conference titles.

Last year, with Faragalli on a one-year

'sabbatical' in the Canadian Football League, the Falcon offense slipped to sixth overall.

So one can understand the relief in the Falcon camp that Faragalli has returned.

"I don't really get involved with the offense a whole lot because I have so much confidence in him," Blackney said. "He's an excellent teacher, an excellent motivator and a great quarterbacks coach."

"He's one of the best offensive coordina-

ng Lineup

Offense

"We're young, we're inexperienced, we don't have a lot of depth on that offensive line," Blackney said. "I think some of our front-line players have a chance to be really good in the future."

Overmatched against one of the best defensive fronts in the country against Alabama, the offensive line could not buy Niemet much protection.

It was Alabama, though, and Blackney saw a lot of positives from the line, especially during the second half.

"I think we can get those things fixed up pretty well," Blackney said. "But the effort and the playing hard was there."

The Falcons expect 1996 to be the season that Niemet comes into his own. He saw extensive action last year while then-starter Ryan Henry was injured and showed flashes of brilliance.

Many consider Niemet the best two-way (run and pass) signal-caller for the Falcons since Mike Wright in the late 70s. He completed 62-of-135 (45.9 pct.) for 733 yards with four touchdowns and eight interceptions in 1995, but also rushed for 173 yards and seven touchdowns.

He will have a more experienced group of wideouts to work with this season. Jacque Rogers missed the entire preseason while waiting on an NCAA ruling concerning an extra year of eligibility, but came back to play in the Alabama game and lead the team in receiving.

"I think we are in better shape right now with our wide receivers than we were a year ago," Blackney said. "Eric Starks is older, he's more mature, he's been working very hard. Terry Lovelle had an outstanding spring. Morty Bryce has looked very good."

That compared to last season, when Starks and Rogers were BG's only legitimate threats downfield.

The rushing game took a tough loss in spring ball with the knee injury to Keylan Cates, last year's leading rusher. While he works his way towards a midseason return, much of the rushing load will fall on the senior Davis.

Davis was good for 458 total yards last season, 282 of them on the ground. He was the leading rusher against Alabama, and will be counted on to carry much of the load again this year until Cates returns.

At tight end, the Falcons are again inexperienced. Tony Holcomb, a sophomore will be counted on more to block.

FARAGALLI

tors in the country," said quarterback Bob Niemet, who immediately became one of Faragalli's prized pupils. "He showed in the past that he can get it done. With the addition of him, we're looking to another great year."

Faragalli takes all the fanfare with his traditional low-key approach.

"That stuff is overrated," he said. "I think they had an outstanding coaching staff last year. That's all a little bit overblown and overrated. The bottom line is, our job is to get our guys in position to make some plays and score some points and be successful."

Faragalli has his work cut out for him. Ten players who started games last year on offense have departed the program, leaving several green - if talented - players in their wake.

The Falcons could manage only seven points in their season opener against Alabama - granted, though, that the Crimson Tide have one of the finest defenses in the country.

Faragalli realizes that the offensive

Courtney Davis

John Kuck

Bob Niemet

Jacque Rogers

line holds the key for the football team, and is confident that those players will mesh together from the get-go.

"That's obviously where it starts," he said. "Unless that group is functioning, the rest of them are going to have a hard time getting things done. That's another position where we have some young guys, but young talented guys and a couple of experienced guys to blend in."

Faragalli can't over-emphasize how happy he is to be back in Bowling Green in 1996. He had taken over the CFL's Toronto Argonauts, but a variety of factors led to his demise north of the border.

"I got my butt fired, that's what happened," he chuckled in the preseason. "Next time, I would never take a job like that."

"It feels great to be back. It's like I was never gone."

The Falcons can only hope for the same for their fledgling offense.

Students' Guide

BGSU students' guide to Falcon football

The Falcons open up a five-game home schedule tomorrow with the 1:00 kickoff against Temple.

Home games are played at Doyt L. Perry Stadium on the east end of campus, overlooking Interstate 75. Admission for Bowling Green students is free when a valid BGSU student ID is displayed (with current validation sticker).

Student entry is via Gates 7-10 on the west side of the stadium (facing campus).

Student seating is generally in the lower level of the west side of the stadium, but students may sit in any general admission area. Reserved chair seats are closed to students.

Gates open an hour before game time. Open containers are prohibited by NCAA regulations, but tailgating is encouraged.

Other home games this year are Sept. 28 against Central Michigan, Oct. 12 against Kent, Oct. 19 against Ball State and Nov. 9 against Western Michigan. All games begin at 1 p.m. except for the Central Michigan game, which will kick off at 3:30 p.m.

Oct. 12 is Homecoming.

All Falcon games will be carried live locally by two radio stations. The campus radio station, WBGU-FM (88.1) will carry each game, home and away. WFOB-AM (1430 AM) from Bowling Green is the flagship station and carries every game. Pregame shows on each station begin one hour before kickoff with postgames lasting one half hour afterward.

The Sept. 28 game against Central Michigan will be televised live locally on SportsChannel. No other Falcon game is currently scheduled for local television.

Special Teams

Pollock will handle punting, place-kicking

It's hard to imagine what was going through Falcon redshirt freshman Andy Pollock's mind when he first stepped on the field for the Alabama game Aug. 31 in Birmingham's Legion Field.

Pollock, BG's punter and place kicker this season, had never played in a college game before.

So, his first action was in front of 76,878 screaming Alabama fans.

The result was a respectable 44-yard punt on that first attempt, the beginning of a solid day for BG's special teams that coach Gary Blackney hopes answered a lot of preseason questions.

"I was really pleased with the special teams," Blackney said. "Andy Pollock did a great job punting the ball. Our coverage was good and our protection was good."

Pollock will continue handling both the punting and place-kicking duties. His only field goal attempt against Alabama was blocked.

Quarterback Bob Niemet will again be the holder on field goal attempts, giving the Falcons a constant threat of a fake. Junior Ed Merritt returns as the long snapper.

Courtney Davis, in addition to starting at tailback, will return both punts and kickoffs.

Toledo picked to win MAC title

When Gary Pinkel came to Toledo in 1991, he designed a pyramid of goals for his team. At the top was being nationally ranked.

"Nobody would say anything, but you could see it in a few of the players' eyes. It was like, 'Hey, let's not run away with ourselves here,'" Pinkel recalls with a laugh.

The Rockets (11-0-1 overall,

7-0-1 in the Mid-American Conference) ran away with that objective - finishing 24th in the nation last year - while becoming the first Division I-A team ever to win a bowl game in sudden death.

Now 18 of the top 22 players are back on defense and quarterback Ryan Huzjak is back. No wonder Toledo was selected to repeat during the MAC's preseason meetings in July.

But Wasean Tait is now lost for the entire season after blowing out his knee in the Indiana game Sept. 7.

All Tait did last year was rush for 1,905 yards and 20 touchdowns - numbers eerily similar to another back from the state, Heisman Trophy winner Eddie George of Ohio State (1,927 yards, 24 TDs).

Tait, a 5-9, 185-pounder from Detroit, finished in the top three in the nation in rushing, scoring and all-purpose yardage.

Huzjak, a 6-3, 198-pound senior, passed for 1,880 yards and 15 touchdowns with only five interceptions in 273 attempts. He comes into 1996 with a string of 75 pass attempts without an interception.

Only one other I-A team went unbeaten last year - and that was top ranked Nebraska.

Can the Rockets do it again?

"I always want people to have high expectations," Pinkel said.

Elsewhere, MIAMI OF OHIO boasts the return of nine starters from a defense that didn't allow a point in four games last year. The Redskins' losses include tailback Deland McCullough and receiver Eric Henderson. But coming off marks of 8-2-1 and 6-1-1, they don't figure to lose much else. Circle the game at Toledo's Glass Bowl Nov. 2 as the decisive game in the MAC season.

BALL STATE won - and lost - a few seasons' worth of close games in Bill Lynch's first year as the head coach. The Cardinals (7-4, 6-2) beat Miami 17-15, Ohio 6-3, Western Michigan 10-0 and Central Michigan 24-16, but the season was tainted by losses to Toledo (17-14) and Eastern Michigan (40-35). With 17 starters back, and the games against Miami and Toledo at home, don't be surprised to see the Cards turn up aces.

Another first-year coach, Rick Rasnick, guided EASTERN MICHIGAN (6-5, 5-3) to first-place in the MAC until a late three-game losing skid. Quarterback Charlie Batch set a slew of records as the Eagles averaged 33 points a game. But standout wide-out Steve Clay is gone. EMU also gave up 30 points a game, and Batch will have to stand almost as tall and produce as many points for the Eagles to go above .500 again.

All of a sudden BOWLING GREEN wasn't invincible. After losing just two MAC games in Gary Blackney's first four years as head coach, the Falcons lapsed to 5-6 and 3-5. Now Blackney is hoping redemption is at hand. He has 14 starters back, seven on each side of the ball, and will be trying to return some of that old magic with new players. The freshman class might be the best ever at the school.

WESTERN MICHIGAN will spend a week during preseason staying in an army barracks nearby. No TV, no radio, no pizza delivery. Only 10 starters from last year's 7-4 and 6-2 team are back to go through the spartan training.

Even though coach Al Molde must find a lot of front-line players, keep in mind the Broncos have a habit of winning - with seven victories in each of the last four seasons.

Who knows what to expect from CENTRAL MICHIGAN? The Chippewas won the MAC title two years ago, then fell to 4-7 last season. One reason was the number of freshmen who saw substantial action, which can only pay benefits this time around. All-MAC senior offensive tackle Scott Rehberg, at 6-8 and 320 pounds, has broad shoulders to carry those young pups.

They may not have the best team, but OHIO figures to have the players with the best tans. The Bobcats, coming off a 2-8-1 and 1-6-1 season, will be rewarded with a trip to Hawaii for a game Sept. 7. A week earlier, they host Akron, which they beat a year ago. Another win and they'll really have something to celebrate on the beach.

KENT coach Jim Corrigan, like a Marine captain, refers to his players as "men." Heavy on underclassmen while winning three games the last two years, that may be an overstatement. Still, tailback Astron Whatley can play.

At one point last season, more than half of the roster for AKRON was freshmen. Coach Lee Owens welcomes back all but one starter, but will still have his hands full. The Zips had almost zip on defense, giving up 49, 50, 60, 77 and 65 points in five of their losses.
